A Message From The Executive Director

Dear Friends of Janus,

Over the past year and a half, we have had to adapt in ways never imagined—separation from family and friends and uncertainty about health, housing and jobs. Yet, even during these difficult times created by the pandemic, Janus Youth Programs has never wavered from its mission to deliver innovative, community-based programs for at-risk children and youth.

This past year has demonstrated how truly essential our services are. Most of the youth we work with have no other options. We provide the only shelters in Multnomah and Clark counties for runaway and homeless youth living on the streets. We provide housing assistance and rental support for over 125 youth a month. We have residential programs that are often the only option that teenage boys have rather than going to jail and have a 98% success rate of them moving back into the community. We also have programs for 17-24 year old young men coming out of a correctional facility. And Janus operates the only residential program in the country for LGBTQ+ youth who were in a correctional facility, transitioning into the community. We operate the largest young parent program in Oregon, helping them be the best parents they can be for their children. During this past year, all of these programs never closed. Seven days a week, 24-hours a day, our youth had safety off the streets and young moms knew they had a place to go for support.

Our youth need you to believe in them and support them. This Annual Report looks back at the many successes of our programs, successes that would not have happened without YOU. Thank you for joining us in advocating for our youth, giving them a second chance.

Dennis Morrow
We provided help 24 hours a day, 365 days a year.
2021 Highlights

- 2,303 street youth were contacted by our street outreach teams.
- 11,041 hygiene and first-aid supplies were distributed to young people living on the streets.
- 226 youth lived in and received support from our transitional or independent housing programs.
- 464 youth had safe shelter every night.
- 276 children received child-development screenings.
- 166 families were enrolled in our Early Childhood and Child Abuse Prevention Program.
- 60 youth resided in one of our five residential homes.
- 145 families in Oregon received housing and advocacy assistance.
- 72 youth received support at our drop-in services in Clark and Cowlitz counties.
- 20 youth received scholarships to advance their education.
Venustiano Carranza was known for its meager resources of clean water, housing, electricity and education. In the early 1970s and late 1990s, this rural town located in Quintana Roo, Mexico was home to my parents until they migrated to the U.S. Unfortunately, they never had the chance to receive a higher education.

The fact that I was first in the family to be born in the U.S. gave hope to my parents. As I grew older, I began to undervalue and underestimate my family, friends and my own life needs. I slowly struggled with my behavior in middle and then high school, ultimately affecting my grades and home life. At the age of 17, I gave out on my education and lost hope in myself, so I resorted to my negative and drug-abusive friends. Eventually, my family, and the ones I caused harm to, were struck with calamity and devastation.

On Dec. 20, 2016, I was 17 years old and being arrested for murder in the first degree. The following year, on Dec. 19, 2017 I plead guilty to one count of manslaughter in the first degree and two counts of criminal conspiracy to commit robbery in the first degree. I was sentenced to serve 240 months, or 20 years. Receiving a sentence of nearly two decades left me feeling broken, as anyone would. But it led to great change.

Since the day of my arrest, I look back at the magnitude and severity of my crime with remorse and regret. While I cannot change what happened, restorative justice has given me the peace and understanding to move forward. I have vowed to make productive choices that contribute positively towards my environment. The process of change is continuous and challenging, but it has propelled me into who I am today. Being an incredibly sensitive and thoughtful young man wasn’t who I pictured myself to be five years ago. - Andy S. M. Hope, participant in the Hope Partnership Program.
